Forecast for Monday 14 Jun 2021

Weather: Dry and bright at dawn, but soon a band of cloud and light rain will make progress southward through the morning, bringing a risk of hill fog over peaks and upslope stratus to western facing flanks. Cloud and rain should begin to clear around midday to bright sunny spells and plenty of dry weather into the afternoon and evening.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: 30% after dawn, becoming 90% by mid-afternoon.

Visibility: Good then soon poor, with cloud bases lowering to 400m. Becoming very good with clear views of distant hills once cloud clears.
